

The image is a composite of several architectural drawings and a central photograph. The drawings, which are in the background, show various views of a domed structure, likely the Tomb of Khan e Dauran, with red and green outlines indicating specific features like arches and windows. The central photograph shows the actual tomb, a large, dark, tiered dome with a blue and gold decorative band near the top. A red dashed line highlights a vertical section of the dome's side. The sky is clear and blue.
